

ALBANIANS AND SERVANS KILL EACH OTHER

Vienna, Sept. 23.—In a fierce battle today between Serbian troops and Albanians on the new Albanian frontier, 200 Albanians were killed, according to a dispatch to the New York Press. The fighting is reported to have occurred at a place between Dibra and Jakova, where many of the battles between the Serbians and the Turks were fought in the recent Balkan war.

The encounter was brought about by an attempt of several thousand Albanians to penetrate the territory captured by the Serbians from the Turks. They were repulsed.

The Serbians lost one captain and a considerable number of men.

charges for the year ending last June, was only $19,536. The payroll, he said, had increased from $13,641,000 in 1902 to $21,947,000 in 1912. During the first four months of 1913 the road employed 2116 more men than in the same period in the previous year.

Benjamin H. Pollard, general manager of the road, was asked by Commissioner Prouty why the cost of operation was greater on the Boston & Maine than on the New York, New Haven and Hartford. Mr. Pollard explained that the Boston & Maine's operation was more complicated. The Boston & Maine is a system of leased lines, and many of these lines parallel each other. In his opinion, one remedy for reducing the cost of operation was to enlarge the freight yards. Lack of proper yard facilities, he said, made switching charges very high, the cost of operation being increased on account of rehandling.

Freight Yards Too Remote.

In many cases, he said, operating cost was high on account of location of the freight yards and he pointed to the North station yards at Boston as an illustration. At certain times of the day, he said, it is impossible to move freight to or from the Myrtle and Hoar's Tunnel docks where many transatlantic terminals are located, because of the interference with passenger traffic. A four-track railroad, in his opinion, would remedy freight congestion.

Figures to show that the railroad was not over-capitalized were introduced by Martin C. Bradley, assistant to General Solicitor Rich. Mr. Bradley said that his computations showed that the Boston & Maine is worth $230,000,000. It is capitalized for $180,000,000.

The hearing will be continued tomorrow.

Mr. Rich's statement reads, in part, as follows:

The investigation of the New England railroads which began in the spring of 1912 was occasioned principally by complaints of bad service on the Boston & Maine railroad. During the course of the hearing it developed that the charges of bad service have since been reinforced.

ALBANIANS TAKE DIBRA

Force of 20,000 Led by Austrian and Bulgarian Officers, Attacked Serbian Garrison.

Belgrade, Serbia, Sept. 23.—The Serbian fortifications of the town of Dibra, Albania, were captured today by an Albanian force of 20,000, according to a report received here. Serbian reinforcements were hastily dispatched to the assistance of the garrison.

The Albanians were said to be led by Austrian and Bulgarian officers.

Developed that the charges of bad service were extreme cold weather, the Hoar's Tunnel disaster, and retrenchment. It was shown that retrenchment was imprudent if the railroad was to be kept solvent.

During the investigation the railroad officials, smarting under public criticism, began to pay more attention to service, with the result that in the spring of 1913, although service had improved, the financial condition of the railroad was becoming most serious. This condition developed toward the close of the hearing in April.

This hearing today is held, partly at least, for the purpose of determining with greater certainty whether the claim of the Boston & Maine railroad that its revenue is entirely inadequate can be justified.

We are prepared to show:

1. The amount of money imperatively needed for capital expenditures.
2. The amount required to pay reasonable dividends, and
3. What part of the required revenue can be secured through more efficient methods of operation.

Financial Condition of Boston & Maine.

For the year ending June 30, 1913, the Boston & Maine railroad, after paying operating expenses and fixed charges, had a net corporate income of $1,696,822. This is the total amount available for dividends to the stockholders, with nothing for additions and betterments. It is useless to conceal the serious situation which confronts the Boston & Maine railroad.

For the month of July, 1913, the net corporate income was only $51,500,241, as contrasted with $167,292.93 for the same month of 1912. The net results for August are not yet available, but from a preliminary study little satisfaction is gleaned from the figures. For September the decrease in gross operating revenue is the 11th of the month has been at the rate of $9,500 per day.

TRAIN SERVICE EXTENDED

Boston & Maine Will Prolong White Mountain Service Until Oct. 20

The conformity with the policy of prolonging the White Mountain service on adopted a year ago, the Boston & Maine has perfected arrangements for a comprehensive extension of service until October 20.

The feature of the regular summer service which will be extended is that of through parlor cars, which Brookline, Mass., Sept. 21.—The American eagle screamed with a shriek of delight over the wonderful performance of Francis Oulmet, a Massachusetts youth, hardly out of his teens, in the winning of the national open golf championship here. By his greatest of pluck and determination, backed by consistent and clever play, the youth carved a name for himself in the hall of golf fame, coming up from behind he tied the two famous British professionals, Hay and Vardon with a total of 304. On the other side were two of England's best professional golfers who earn their bread and butter at the game and on the other side a young stripling almost never heard of until this year. The playoff for the title was the most important international golf event of the year. Oulmet won at the 18th hole, his score being 72. Vardon was second with 77, and Hay third with 78.

will be operated daily except Sunday in both directions between Boston and Dutton Woods, and New York and Dutton Woods. The northbound service will be given from September 29 until October 18, inclusive, and the southbound service from September 20, to October 29, inclusive. The service will be by way of Wells River and Woodsville.

In connection with the above train service on the White Mountain Branch will be continued until October 29, inclusive, three trains being operated in each direction daily, except Sunday.

RAILROAD NOTES

The Boston & Albany placed orders for 30 more all-steel passenger cars. General change in division points on Chicago & Alton, Illinois Central, Rock Island & Burlington, in Illinois, may result from efforts to adhere to 16 hours continuous labor law, adding heavily to the expense of western roads. Many divisions have been rearranged with the hope of returning the running time between points where a reser is changed to 16 hours or under, because their work is heavy or unlooked for delays occur, it is impossible to adhere to the law.

In order to facilitate freight traffic over the Portland division, the Boston & Maine it is said will Sunday next move all east bound freights over the western route from North Berwick and west bound freights over the eastern route between these points.

The engineers run on the York Harbor and Beach branch, has been posted for bids.

Conductor Frank Moore and engineer Edward Hall were in charge of the special passenger train from this city to Rochester today.

The terminal division of the Boston & Maine abolished less than a year ago by the axe committive has been reestablished and U. H. Pollock, assistant to general superintendent W. P. Ray will go back to his former position as terminal superintendent. The order issued by General Manager Pollock and General Superintendent Ray goes into effect on Sunday next.

Train Masters Fosgate, Miliken, Morey and others of the Portland division are at Rochester during the fair handling the traffic over the company's lines.

The special train from this city had 160 passengers for the Rochester fall today.

Some of the mountain train on the New York express from Portland over the Boston & Maine will it is said run till October 20.

A Maine Program.

Those on the inside of Maine political circles have been whispering of late, until some are even venturing to speak of it aloud, that Gov. Haines will not be a candidate for re-election next year and that the republicans will re-nominate Hon. Carl E. Milliken of Island Falls. The point of this lies not so much in the failure to give Gov. Haines the second term that Maine governors have always had, or tried for, as in the plan to make Mr. Milliken his successor. Haines is making a good governor. Nobody in any party disputes that, though, of course, his program of rigid enforcement does not please everybody. Mr. Milliken as governor would stand for the same strict enforcement program.

But the reason why Haines will be satisfied with one term and why the party is talking of nominating Milliken at this time is that Milliken was one of the foremost Roosevelt men in the state last fall. He was one of the first at Armageddon and the great republican county of Aroostook, where he has been a popular leader for years, followed him into the Roosevelt camp. But when the legislature met in January, Milliken, who has been there regularly since he got through college 16 years ago, declared that he was still a republican and he has been quietly getting the two factions together ever since. Everybody in Maine knows that his liberal brand of republicanism is genuine and not assumed, and if he is named for governor there will be no third ticket in Maine and not a bull moose will have an excuse for lingering outside the breast-works. The work begun this fall in the third district will be carried to its logical conclusion all over Maine. Even Milliken's father, a millionaire lumberman of Augusta, who is the most unreconstructed progressive in the third district, would hardly hold out with the young man leading the republican ticket.

The program shows that political sagacity did not die in Maine when Blaine and Mandley passed on. It will be in real sacrifice to Gov. Haines to step aside. The nomination of Milliken will mean the disappearance of the last vestige of the progressive organization in a state where it is admittedly stronger than almost anywhere else in the country. Incidentally, it would leave a clear field in the fourth district for Chairman Parkhurst to succeed Congressman Guernsey.—Boston Herald.

For Higher Education.

A new educational act passed by Illinois legislature and which became effective on July first, giving pupils of the eighth grade schools in districts which have no high school course, the privilege of attending any high school in their vicinity which offers a four year course, the expense to be met by the district from which the pupil comes, is regarded as one of the best pieces of school legislation enacted in years. Following is the complete bill and should be read by all who have children who might benefit from its provisions, and a like law should be passed by every state in the Union:

Section 1. Be it enacted by the people of the state of Illinois, represented in the general assembly: That graduates of the eighth grade residing in a school district in which no public high school is maintained, shall be admitted, upon the payment of tuition to any public high school, with the consent of the school board in which such high school is situated. The tuition of such pupils shall be paid by the district in which they reside, from all funds not otherwise appropriated, but in no case shall the tuition per pupil exceed the per capita cost of maintaining the high school selected. The parent, or guardian, shall select the school to be attended, subject to the approval of the school directors of the home district. Provided, however, that the high school selected offers a program of studies extending through four years. The application of this act shall not relate to districts that provide work in the ninth and tenth grades, except to pupils who have completed the work of such grades.

Books Should Be Included.

There is a rapidly growing demand in all parts of the country that books be included in the list of articles sent by parcels post. Why should books be excluded and bricks be carried at the low rate? The present arrangement is inconsistent and absurd. A cheap rate on books would be a decided benefit to a very large percentage of the people of the United States. It is likely that more live in communities and on farms to which books must be shipped than reside in cities or in towns in which books may be purchased from dealers. All those on rural routes and villages are interested in securing a lower rate on literature and are entitled to consideration.

A Formula for Keeping Cool.

After summarizing, analyzing, digesting, filtering and decanting the various formula for keeping cool, the following recipe appears to be the only one worthy of entire confidence: Don't eat at all; don't wear anything; don't drink a drop; stop thinking altogether.

"I Should Worry," Says Sulzer's Press Agent, Garrison, Jailed.

James C. Garrison, chief press agent for Governor William Sulzer of New York, whose impeachment trial attracted nation wide interest when it started on Thursday, Sept. 18, was jailed for charging that four members of the assembly had accepted bribes for impeaching Governor Sulzer. Mr. Garrison, who is a newspaper man, drifted into Albany, N. Y., last October and soon became attached to the Sulzer forces. He proved an indefatigable worker, and Mr. Sulzer took an especial liking to him. Garrison refused to appear before the Judiciary committee when the governor was under fire and was adjudged in contempt. He was turned over to the sheriff and jailed without bail. Garrison is shown here with his keeper. "I should worry?" was his only comment.

REPUBLICANS NAME GARDNER

Walsh and Bird Also Successful in Bay State Primaries.

Boston, Sept. 23.—Returns from 23 cities and 301 towns out of 33 cities and 320 towns give Republican Governor Gardner, 35,502; Benton, 25,567; Democratic Independent Governor Barry, 23,398; Long, 22,411.

Boston, Sept. 23.—Congressman August P. Gardner, Lieut. Governor David L. Walsh and Charles S. Bird will lead the Republican, Democratic and progressive tickets, respectively, in the fall campaign as the result of the primaries today.

Lieut. Governor Walsh and Mr. Bird were nominated without opposition, and Congressman Gardner won after a lively contest with Colonel Everett C. Benton, who was defeated for the nomination last year by Joseph Walker.

Returns from Boston, ten small cities and 229 out of 323 towns gave Gardner 17,478; Benton, 13,075.

There was a contest for the second place on the Democratic ticket in which it appeared from the early returns that Edward P. Barry had defeated Richard H. Long by a small margin. The vote from Boston, ten cities and 229 towns gave Barry 21,568 and Long 18,311.

Veto Is Exceptionally Light

Nearly 100,000 enrolled Democrats and almost an equal number of Republicans voted at the primary last year, while the early returns today seemed to indicate a falling off of nearly 50 per cent of the vote of both parties.

Congressman Gardner said tonight: "Of course I am very much pleased at the outcome, I don't believe that any candidate in Massachusetts has ever been more fortunate than I in the matter of enthusiastic friends."

"Now one word about Col. Benton. He has certainly put up a stout fight. He has a very wide acquaintance among old line Republicans and his resistance will be of great value to me."

The full tickets nominated by the three parties with the exception of Treasurer on the Republican and Democratic tickets, were as follows:

Democratic

Governor—David L. Walsh, Fitchburg.
Lieut. Governor—Edward P. Barry, Boston.

Secretary of State—Frank J. Donahue, Boston.
Auditor—Frank H. Pope, Leominster.
Attorney General—Thomas J. Baynton, Beverly.

Progressive

Governor—Charles S. Bird, Watpole.
Lieut. Governor—Daniel C. Grover, Lowell.

Secretary of State—Russell A. Wood, Cambridge.
Treasurer—Warren R. Keith, Brockton.

Auditor—Octave Lefevre, Springfield.
Attorney General—H. Henshaw, Newton, Everett.

Republican
Governor—Augustus P. Gardner, Haverhill.
Lieut. Governor—August H. Goetting, Springfield.

Secretary of State—William S. Kinney, Boston.
Auditor—John E. White, Tisbury.
Attorney General—James M. Swift, Fall River.

The officers to receive renominations were: Secretary of State—Donahue, Auditor White and Attorney General Swift.

"THE PURPLE ROAD."

Brilliant Spectacular Operetta at the Shubert Theatre, Boston.

"The Purple Road" is at the Shubert Theatre, Boston, after a brief but highly successful run in New York at the close of the past season. This does not wonder at its success, for its picturesque character and bright, tuneful score make unmistakably for popularity. The scenes and story supposedly represent an episode in the life of Napoleon, which prove a most acceptable vehicle for musical romantic comedy, the second week beginning Monday, Sept. 29.

There are many little side episodes that lend strength and piquancy to an admirable little story, which is in dialogue well within its era though amusing at every point. Mr. Reinhardt, who is also responsible for "The Spring Maid," has created a most pleasing score, tuneful, rhythmic with clever and dainty instrumentation that delights the ear at all times. The dancing specialties are numerous and well contrasted and prove a strong factor in the success of the production.

The cast is one of length and of much strength in every way. Miss Valli Valli was the Wandu, and she sang well, looked the part and danced most cleverly. The cast includes: Harrison Brockbank, Edna Director, Orla, Eva Fallon, Edward Martindale, Harriet Burr, Norma Winslow, Ernest Stoddard, Raymond Crane and Ann Walker.

REAL FARMER HAS NO VOICE

In the Disbursement of the Appropriations Made by the Government.

Fort Worth, Texas, Sept. 24.—The resolution of friendly criticism passed by the National Farmers' Union in convention at Salina, Kansas, recently, against the Bulletin Service of the Federal Department of Agriculture is a plea for more rigid economy in distribution and a more practical selection and discussion of agricultural subjects, but the fundamental error is in spending all the funds available on the production side of agriculture and giving little or no attention to marketing. There is much to be commended in the work of this department, and its future prospects for service far excel its past achievements now that it is giving consideration to distribution of farm products. The Secretary of Agriculture is entitled to and will receive the cordial support of the three million members of the Farmers' Union in his efforts to better agricultural conditions and he can best serve our interests by giving all possible attention to marketing.

While the Department of Agriculture has been dumping tons of literature on the farmer, telling him how to produce, the farmer has been dumping tons of products in the nation's garbage can for want of a market.

While many wealthy corporations and individuals professing a desire to aid the farmer have been telling us how to plow, the farmer has been suffering from lack of distribution.

The real farmer has no voice in the disbursement of the appropriations made by the government or of donations made by public spirited citizens to promote agriculture. The work is all done on the basis that the farmer does not know his problems.

We not only present the suggestion that the farmer is incompetent but have for years asserted that the farmers of the United States are the most intelligent farmers on earth. They have solved the problems of production and the assistance now most needed is in marketing. The trouble all along has been in faulty distribution. In support of this assertion, I shall offer in defense of the National Farmers' Union of America, a series of articles to the press. I want to say here that I follow the play and that I am not wielding an alien pen.

The World Will Never Starve.

At no time since Adam and Eve were driven from the Garden of Eden have the inhabitants of this world suffered from lack of production, but some people have gone hungry from the day of creation to this good hour for the lack of proper distribution. Slight variations in production have forced a change in diet, and one locality has felt the lack of wheat, while another suffered, but the world, as a whole, has never been a land of plenty.

We now have less than one-tenth of the tillable land of the earth's surface under cultivation, and we not only have this surplus area to draw on but it is safe to estimate that in case of dire necessity one-half the earth's population could at the present time, knock their living out of the trees of the forests, gather it from wild grain and draw it from streams. No one should become alarmed; the world will never starve.

The consumer has always feared that the producer would not supply him and his fright has found expression on the statute books of our states and nations, and the farmer has been urged to produce recklessly and without reference to a market, and regardless of the demands of the consumer.

Back to the Soil.

The city people have been urging each other to move back to the farm but very few of them have moved. We welcome our city cousins back to the soil and this earth's surface contains 18,002,160,000 acres of tillable land where they can make a living by tilling the earth with a forked stick, but we do not need them so far as increasing production is concerned; we now have all the producers we can use. The city man has very erroneous ideas of agricultural conditions. The commonly accepted theory that we are short on production is all wrong. Our increase in production far exceeds that of our increase in population.

The World as a Farm.

Taking the world as one big farm, we find two billion acres of land in cultivation, representing one-fifth of the earth's surface. Of this amount there is approximately 750,000,000 acres on the western and 1,250,000,000 acres on the eastern hemisphere, in cultivation. This estimate, of course, does not include grazing lands, forests, etc., where large quantities of meat are produced.

The world's annual crop approximates fifteen billion bushels of cereals, thirteen billion pounds of fibre, and sixty-five million tons of meat.

The average annual world crop for the past five years, compared with the previous five years is as follows:

Crops	Past Half Decade.	Present Half Decade.
Corn	3,334,174,000	3,403,655,000
Wheat	3,532,788,000	3,557,525,000
Oats	4,120,017,000	3,568,315,000
Cotton	18,843,300	17,531,300

The world shows an average increase in cereals of 13 per cent during the

CURRENT OPINION

WHAT REAL PATRIOTISM IS

Real patriotism is not a willingness to die for your country, but a willingness to give your time, money and thought for your country.

If you would take the time you employ in drilling in the armory, wearing gold braid and a sword, and employ it in interesting yourself in political conditions in your ward, you would be more of a patriot.

Patriotism is not a military thing, to be exercised upon supreme occasions of war, but it is an everyday thing to be shown by improving the conditions of life in your community.

It is not for parade. It is for use.

It is not a luxury. It is a necessity.

You cannot be a genuine patriot until you are converted. Instead of a merely individual conscience you must get a civic conscience. You must learn to feel that your city's affairs are "my business" and not the political bosses' business. You must develop the Human Nerve. You must feel what Humanly means.

For patriotism is a religion; it means a high form of continuous devotion.

You cannot be a patriot and not be interested in politics. Politics is the expression of Patriotism. If it is degraded, you are degraded and your city and state.—Dr. Frank Crane, in the Woman's World.

most half decade, compared with the previous five years, while the world's population shows an increase of only 3 per cent.

The gain in production far exceeds that of our increase in population, and it is safe to estimate that the farmer can easily increase production 25 per cent. If a remunerative market can be found for the products. In textile fibres the world shows an increase during the past half decade in production of 15 per cent, against a population increase of 3 per cent.

The people of this Nation should address themselves to the subject of improved facilities for distribution.

Distribution of the World's Greatest Problem.

Many of the older nations of the earth have given more consideration to the practical problems of civilization than that of the United States. The American Commission which has been touring Europe and studying conditions in the old world report many of the nations far advanced in the problem of distribution. While conditions in the eastern and western hemispheres materially differ, it is encouraging to note the progress made in the solution of this great problem. It is also interesting to learn that the subject is receiving first consideration of those who mould the policies of government.

In the German markets the farmers receive from 25 to 40 per cent more for many of their products, and the consumer pays less than in markets where American methods prevail. On this basis of reckoning, advanced methods of distribution would add $500,000,000 in value to the crops of the United States, as well as reduce the cost to the consumer.

Is it not a problem sufficiently large to engage the attention of our ablest statesmen? The economic distribution of farm products is today the world's greatest problem.

IN BEHALF OF HOUSEWIVES

Will Show the Way Towards Cheaper and Better Living.

Calgary, Alberta, Sept. 24.—At the annual meeting of the Calgary Consumers' League, the organization which forced the establishment of a public market in this city, plans were laid for the future and arrangements made to greatly increase the scope of the league's work on behalf of the housewives of Calgary.

While members of the league are more than satisfied with the result of their efforts in bringing producer and consumer together in the public market they are by no means disposed to sit idly by and rest on their laurels. Staff officers of the league are an energetic band of women and are now planning to tackle other problems.

The league now proposes to agitate for a law which will compel the publication of the ingredients of package foodstuffs. Says the president:

"When we buy our cereals today, how do we know whether we are buying extravagantly or the reverse? When we buy so-called extracted honey, what assurance have we that it was not concocted in the rear of some grocery store from which we buy. We want laws for the publication of the contents of canned goods."

"We will try to educate women to buy supplies of eggs and butter when the cost is lowest and to become alert at the art of storing them for winter use."

At the meeting it was clearly shown that it is not the purpose of the Consumers' League to become a co-operative institution. It was announced that two British Columbia fruit growing organizations had made advances of this nature to the league. In other words they were looking for a Canadian market for their products. The women who direct the league's affairs decided against this plan coming to the conclusion that the organization had a much greater and wider work in front of it than the mere securing of cheap food for its own members. As these women see the league's mission it is an organization which will show the way towards cheaper and better living to all people.

MURDERED AND THEN ROBBED

Indianapolis Horror Adds Another Victim to Slayer's Fiendish Work.

Indianapolis, Sept. 23.—Convicted that the young man who yesterday brutally murdered and robbed Joseph Schlanisky, a clothing merchant in a hotel here is the same person who has committed several crimes in several eastern and middle western cities, the local police department tonight asked officers in every large city east of the Mississippi river to watch for the slayer. They believe the murderer is Joseph Ellis, about 31 years old of Richmond, Va.

Investigation of the murder of Schlanisky showed it had been copiously planned, and the escape so carefully carried out as to escape suspicion temporarily.

After murdering the merchant the man discarded a collar, spotted with blood, walked to a nearby store, where he purchased another and then returned to the lobby of the hotel, where his victim lay dead, and remained for an hour or more. Late in the afternoon the slayer returned to his room and then going to the Union depot secured his suit case from the check room and is believed to have caught an east-bound train. The police allege that they have gathered evidence showing that Ellis who is also known as Brokaw and Robert Duncan, committed similar crimes in Louisville last week and left there Saturday for Indianapolis. Previous to the Louisville robbery the man is supposed to have attacked merchants in Cleveland, Toledo, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh.

Works Same Scheme

In each town where the man operated his scheme was the same. He would register at a hotel under an assumed name, call on either one of the smaller clothing merchants or a second hand dealer and explain that he had some samples he must get out of his possession at once and ask the dealer to take his room. Once in the man's room the procedure nearly always was the same. The victim was either struck down or forced at the point of a revolver to submit to being bound and gagged. Then his valuables were stolen and the robber leaving the merchant to be discovered by hotel employees, departed. The man did not attempt to use any disguise and always walked from the merchant's store to his hotel, where in most cases he passed through the lobby chatting to his intended victim. That the murderer of Schlanisky is Joseph Ellis, the police say they feel certain. He was identified at Louisville by photographs sent from his home and also by photographs sent out by the Pittsburgh police who accused the man under the name of Brokaw for an attack on a merchant there. At the time that Schlanisky was murdered four squads of detectives were working Ellis here. A telegram had been received earlier in the day asking the Indianapolis police to arrest Ellis. The squads made the investigation throughout the afternoon and night and at the hotel where Schlanisky was killed, the clerks did not remember a guest answering Ellis' description.

ANOTHER BIG ONE

Mushrooms—Getting Bigger Every Minute

Michael Rangan of Woodbury avenue who holds the blue ribbon on mushrooms says that the find of Frank A. Carlin at Nowington was a baby mushroom compared with what he has gathered in the fields during the past week. It required a basket to get the last big one to his home and his friends say that it would have fed a family for a week. The big mushroom men have little on the Vaughan Street Fishing Club for big catches and they will soon be compelled to hire auto trucks to get these edible field plants to their homes.

SULZER SUBMITS TO COURT RULING

His Chief Counsel Says Impeached Governor Bows to Will of Tribunal.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 23.—After a day spent in listening to lengthy arguments, the high court for the trial of the impeachment of Governor William Sulzer adjourned tonight without having decided whether the impeached executive will have to answer charges involving the misuse of the funds contributed for his campaign last fall. It is expected however that the court will reach a decision shortly after reconvening tomorrow.

In the event of the denial of the motion to strike out the three articles dealing with the campaign contributions, the guns of the impeached executive's legal battery will have been spiked as far as the preliminaries are concerned and the actual trial will begin.

The principal contention of the governor's side was that the acts specified in the three articles objected to, were committed, if at all, while William Sulzer was a private citizen. Their opponents argued that they so intimately connected with the office that it would be impossible to separate them.

Confident of Article's Dismissal

That counsel for the assembly managers are confident the court will not dismiss the three articles is evidenced by the fact that they are announced that Jacob H. Schiff, Abram I. Elkus, and Henry Morgenthau and others who contributed to the Sulzer election fund, will be on hand tomorrow ready to take the witness stand.

Mr. Schiff, the counsel announced would be the first witness for the prosecution on the contested facts. Mr. Schiff's $2500 contribution was not mentioned in the sworn statement of election expenses filed by the governor, with the secretary of the state after his election.

Governor Sulzer today submitted to the ruling of the high court that the assembly had the constitutional right to impeach him. This announcement was one of the features of the day's proceedings. At the opening of court Presiding Justice Cullen announced that the motion of the governor's counsel to dismiss the proceedings have been overruled. "It is now incumbent upon the respondent to answer," therefore Judge D. Cady Herick, chief counsel for the impeached executive, informed the court that the governor will bow to the will of the tribunal and will exercise none of the prerogatives of his office pending the determining of the impeachment charges.

Counsel Preparing Attack

Counsel for the assembly managers were busy tonight preparing to place their first witnesses on the stand. Formal proof of the nomination and election of the governor first will be adduced.

It is on this statement that the prosecution bases its most serious charges. The document shows that Sulzer received $5,960, and in furtherance of his campaign he expended $7,224. The articles of impeachment charge him with having received at least $5,500, of which no mention is made in the sworn statement.

The preliminaries disposed of, the managers are planning to enter their fight upon the three articles—first, second, and sixth—having to do with the governor's campaign contributions and his alleged use of the funds in Wall street. If the court rules that they may be considered.

OBITUARY.

William R. Weston.

The death of Mr. William R. Weston occurred at the Portsmouth hospital on Monday from appendicitis, after a very short illness. He was born in Sussex, England, Oct. 22, 1874, and came to this country when a boy of 16. He worked for some time for the Portsmouth Shoe Co., but for the last fifteen years has been employed as pipe fitter for the navy yard. Mr. Weston was a communicant of Christ church, a member of St. Andrew's Brotherhood and of the choir of that church, and was a most enthusiastic worker in the parish. He was also a member of St. Andrews Lodge, A. F. & A. M. He played for many years in the old Portsmouth band and was a musician of marked ability. The death of Mr. Weston leaves a void that can never be filled. Not only in the home where he was an ideal husband and father, but in the parish, the lodge room and workshop he will be greatly missed. He is survived by his devoted wife, two sons, Morrison and Burgess, and a daughter, Emma. He has also a father, brother and three sisters in England. To his stricken family the sympathy of all is extended. The funeral services will be held from Christ church on Thursday at 2 o'clock.

COMB SAGE TEA IN HAIR TO DARKEN IT

Grandma Kept Her Locks Dark, Glossy, Thick, with a Mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair, is grandmother's treatment and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good even color, which is quite sensible as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage at the musky cypress at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy" for about 50 cents a bottle. It is very popular because nobody can discover that it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb with a soft brush with it and draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive, besides preventing dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair.

LINGUISTIC CARMEN OF PARIS

Many of Them Speak Several Languages Proficiently

At the Hotel de Ville has been held the annual examination of drivers of taxis and cabs who have taken a course in foreign languages. Of 12 ex-aminers even passed and received the authorization to wear the badge which indicates their ability to speak one or more of these four languages—English, German, Italian, and Spanish. Policemen also of late years have the right to take a course in modern languages, but few of them now avail themselves of it, as they have discovered that he who increases knowledge does not thereby increase his pay.

One of the successful candidates is M. Hussat, a cabby of over 60, who obtained diplomas both in English and German. When reminded that he had now the qualifications which are demanded of the candidate for the "baccalaureat" M. Hussat replied that he was already a Bachelor of Letters, having taken his degree in classical 45 years before, with the intention, since abandoned, of entering the priesthood. "What a quantity!" said his interviewer, "and more especially what a quality of force you ought to have!" But M. Hussat shook his head sorrowfully. "On the contrary," he said, "it is rather a disadvantage than otherwise. Foreigners, as soon as they find out you speak their language, dismiss you for their Baedeker, warns them to beware of those who speak your language in Paris."—Paris correspondence London Telegraph.

The 19th Annual Meeting of the New Hampshire Horticultural Society, which is to be held at Lacota, Oct. 22, 23, and 24, promises to be the most successful annual meeting and exhibition yet held by this society. Arrangements have been made whereby the Society will have the use of the court house both for the exhibition and for their meetings. The list of premiums is much larger, and of greater value than ever before. We are advised by the Secretary, Stanley K. Lovell, of Goffstown, N. H., that the premium lists will be ready in a few days, and those desiring same should write him immediately for premium lists and entry blanks. As usual the Society will have eminent men for the New Hampshire, Massachusetts and other New England colleges and experiment stations, to address the meetings on topics of interest to the fruit growers of the state. Every fruit grower in New Hampshire should plan to take two or three days of and attend this exhibit and meeting which is free to all.

Doubling Human Life.

In 1860 the public health conditions of New York were in so low a state that the average length of life of the inhabitants was 30 years. In 1912 these conditions had been improved so that the average length of life was 50 years. Thus the value of human life, reckoned in terms of time alone, and more than doubled in less than half a century.—Century Magazine.

THAW'S CASE IN THE HANDS OF GOV. FELKER

Lengthy Hearing Held in Senate Chamber--Thaw's Counsel Make Long Argument for Prisoner.

Concord, N. H., Sept. 23.—Counsel for Harry K. Thaw this morning urged Gov. Samuel D. Felker not to honor the requisition of Acting Gov. Martin N. Glynn of New York for the return of the slayer of Stanford White. Ex-Judge William M. Chase of Concord and Ex-Gov. William A. Stone of Pittsburg, in lengthy arguments charged that the authorities of New York were not acting in good faith; that no crime had been properly charged against Thaw; that Thaw was insane, and as such could not be extradited; and that the attempt to procure his extradition on the warrant alleging conspiracy was a subterfuge adopted for the purpose of recommitting him to the Matteawan Asylum for the Criminal Insane.

Gov. Felker was asked to refuse to sign the executive warrant because he had no evidence that Thaw had committed an offense in New York, and must conclude that Thaw, an insane man, could never be tried and punished for any offense in New York. Thaw's lawyers remained that to render Thaw in New York the Governor must be satisfied that a proper charge had been brought against him for which he could be tried. All the facts they contended, indicated the impossibility of any criminal action being maintained against Thaw until first he proved sane.

William Travers Jerome, who appeared as chief counsel for the state of New York, made no statement to Gov. Felker beyond the assertion that the requisition papers were in regular and authorized form and that to comply with the request of the Acting Governor of New York was mandatory. So insistently all that Gov. Felker heard this forenoon were the reasons advanced by the defense for withholding his consent to the removal of Harry Thaw from the state.

In the afternoon, the hearing was resumed, with other arguments on behalf of Thaw.

Thaw went on his counsel pleaded with Gov. Felker not to surrender him to the authorities of New York, but to allow him to go home with his mother and friends, who were anxious to take him to Pittsburg. Seated only a few feet from William Travers Jerome, Thaw, when his eyes were not blinded by his handkerchief, gazed intently into the face of the special deputy Attorney General of New York, as if the head of the opposing counsel were the man to be convinced.

Dutchess Sheriff Not With Jerome. William Travers Jerome does not expect to have his prisoner on the way back to Matteawan immediately. Sheriff Frederic Hornbeck of Dutchess County, New York, designed by Acting Gov. Martin N. Glynn in his requisition sent to Gov. Felker as the officer to receive Thaw, did not return to Concord this morning, prepared to take charge of the prisoner.

Mr. Jerome and Franklin N. Kennedy, Deputy Attorney General of New York, arrived this morning to press the demand for the rendition of Thaw. Thaw's counsel feared that on reaching Concord Mr. Jerome would file with the Governor some additional documents to fortify the application for the return of the fugitive. Mr. Jerome did not present any other papers, but came ready to proceed on the requisition presented to Gov. Felker 10 days ago.

Thaw Hears Encouraging Words. Harry Thaw had the gratification of passing through a sympathetic gathering of about 500 on his way from the hotel across the street to the State House. If there were no cheers, he heard plenty of encouraging comments from all sides. Accepting them as an indication of the temper of the people to whom the Governor must give attention, Thaw was visibly exhilarated by the expression of popular sympathy.

He was brought to the State House by United States Marshal Eugene P. Note at 10.30 a. m., half an hour before the time fixed by Gov. Felker for the hearing on the requisition. The Governor permitted the fugitive and his counsel to occupy the Executive Chamber for a consultation prior to the hearing.

On this occasion, when in of such consequence to Harry Thaw, he has the support of his mother and his brother, Josiah. Believing that she might be permitted to address the Governor on her son's behalf, Mrs. Thaw attended the hearing. With the feeble step of an invalid, Mrs. Thaw walked slowly across the State House Park and up the steps into the building, assisted by her son Josiah.

The hearing, which opened soon after 11 a. m., took place in the Senate chamber. Admission was denied to the general public, but tickets were passed by the Secretary of State up to the seating capacity of the room.

Thaw, as usual on public occasions, on being led into the Senate chamber at 11.05 a. m., became impressively busy shuffling papers, and impatiently scolding instructions, which he distributed among the lawyers at the counsel table where he sat, at the left of the chamber, near Mrs. Thaw, her maid and son Josiah. With the exception of Ex-Gov. William A. Stone of Pennsylvania all of Thaw's counsel were New Hampshire men. Ex-Judge William A. Chase, George P. Morris and Merrill Rhoades.

Jerome and Thaw Ignore Each Other. W. T. Jerome and his associate, Franklin Kennedy of New York and Bernard Jacobs of Lancaster, were on the right with an official stenographer in the center.

Thaw passed within a foot of Jerome as he made his way to the seat, but no sign of recognition was given by either. Some of Thaw's counsel, however, shook hands with Jerome.

The appearance in the chamber of Thaw, Felker and his party was delayed by the fact that Mrs. Felker, the Governor's wife, was on a train which did not reach Concord until after 11 a. m.

At 11.15 the Governor came in with Mrs. Felker, attended by Atty. Gen. James P. Tuttle and by the members of the Executive Council, accompanied by their wives. Other state officials occupied a small gallery overlooking the Senate Chamber.

Gov. Felker took his seat upon the dais usually occupied by the president of the Senate, with the Attorney General on his left and Secretary of State Edward N. Peterson on his right.

Gov. Felker opened the hearing by stating that, having received the requisition from the Governor of New York, alleging that Harry K. Thaw was a fugitive from justice, he was ready to entertain arguments. He was inclined to hear whatever the lawyers had to say without strict regard to its admissibility.

Speaking for the state of New York William Travers Jerome said the papers having been filed, spoke for them selves.

At 12.30 the hearing was adjourned until two o'clock at which time the counsel resumed their argument against the granting of the extradition papers following the argument with law quotations.

At the conclusion Governor Felker reserved his decision.

20,000 INDEPENDENT TELEPHONE LINES.

Complaints against the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, who are urging Attorney General McElroy to investigate the so-called Bell Telephone Trust continue to flood the Department of Justice with information regarding the telephone situation. To emphasize the significance of protests from independent telephone interests and the attention they warrant, one complainant pointed out that there were 20,000 independent telephone companies in the United States, with an aggregate capital of $200,000,000, and with almost as many subscribers as their big rival.

HAUSER COURT MARTIAL OPENS. A naval court was ordered convened at Vallejo Cal. to hear charges against Lt. M. Hauser assistant paymaster of the cruiser Buffalo whose accounts it is alleged show a shortage of $1350. The full charges have not been made public. The court was to take up the trial yesterday but the non-arrival of the charges and specifications from Washington caused delay.

BAD SIGNAL SERVICE AND BUNCHING TRAINS

Principal Cause of Disaster on New Haven Road--Interstate Commissioners' Report Expected Shortly.

Hartford, Conn., Sept. 23.—Lack of an adequate signal system, the bunching of six trains within a 10-mile stretch of track and reckless driving by the engineers in a fog are given as causes for the collision between the Bar Harbor and the White Mountain Expresses on the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad at North Haven, Sept. 2, resulting in 21 deaths, say the Public Utilities Commission, in its report on the accident made public today.

Six specific causes are assigned, as follows:

Lack of an adequate signal system had signal 23 been connected with a distant signal, the engineers of the Bar Harbor second section and the White Mountain Express first section would have been warned of its position when half a mile or more distant.

Bunching of six passenger trains, during a fog (with the signal system then in use) in the 10-mile section between Wallingford and the Air Line Junction.

Reckless running in a fog on the part of engineer Wanda (of the Bar Harbor Express) who passed block signal No. 23 when it indicated stop, and the consequent clearing of signal No. 25 for the first section of train No. 95, following.

Failure of flagman Murray of the Bar Harbor Express to go back a sufficient distance to offer any protection whatever to his train.

The indifference of conductor Adams (of the Bar Harbor) who did not show sufficient interest in the safety of his train, knowing that a train was following, to see that his flagman was doing his duty, and for stopping his train and cutting in the flagman, who otherwise would have been left to flag the White Mountain express.

Engineer Miller's reckless running (of the White Mountain) in a fog and his failure to control his train and be prepared to stop before passing signal No. 23.

Engineer Miller, flagman Murray and conductor Adams are at present under bonds awaiting trial as a result of the finding of Coroner Mix, fixing criminal responsibility for the wreck upon them.

INTERSTATE C. C. FINDING. It Places the "Man-Fault" Definitely.—Pres. Howard Elliott Particularly Concerned About Report.

Washington, Sept. 23. Howard Elliott, president of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, conferred here today with the Interstate Commerce Commission about conditions upon his lines. He was particularly concerned about the forthcoming report of the commission on the North Haven, Conn., rear-end collision, which will be made public late tomorrow.

Pres. Elliott was given no inkling of the character of the report prepared by Commissioner McChord, after an exhaustive personal investigation. He was assured, however, that published forecasts of the findings of the commission were unauthorized, misleading and essentially inaccurate.

Both Commissioner McChord and Inspector Behm have not only analyzed thoroughly the evidence they secured themselves, but have carefully considered the testimony at the coroner's inquest. Their conclusions, therefore, are based upon a thorough knowledge of the conditions surrounding the disaster and of the operatives who were the human factors in it.

Beyond the statement that any forecast of the report thus far published is premature and inaccurate, Commissioner McChord declined today to go. It is known, however, that it will contain not only a severe arraignment of operating conditions upon the New Haven, but of men. Responsibility for the accident is placed definitely, "man-fault" being an important factor.

Probabilities are strong that the commission, in its forthcoming annual report, will recommend to the Congress the enactment of legislation that will reduce materially the chances of serious railway disasters.

GREEN CORN GETTING JUST DUE. Its Deliciousness Recognized and Demonstrated.

(New York Sun.) Chasing dish specialties at the hotels just now include many preparations of green corn. The majority of these are adaptations of old southern recipes which have been revived with a few fancy touches by modern chefs.

A spoonful of chopped green peppers or some slices of pumpkin, a top sprinkling of cheese or a few eggs with work wenders in transforming a humble green corn dish into a challenging dish concoction. The glamour of the attraction service goes a long way toward the popularity of such a dish, and the delicate flavor of green corn happens to blend particularly well with many of the best liked accessories.

The simplest recipe for stewed or creamed corn can be so glorified that it will bear little resemblance to its original state. A couple of eggs beaten into the sauce gives a rich yellow, which adds to the attractiveness of the dish, as well as to its nutritive value. Slices of stewed okra blend well with the flavor of corn, and creamed corn with okra can be utilized as a soup, or the same mixture can be baked and served direct from the dish. The process is the same in each case, the variation being merely in the amount of liquid added and the mode of serving.

Corn chowder with okra is a favorite southern soup, which is now being served at some of the establishments run by southern housekeepers. Any simple creamed corn mixture, with the addition of three eggs to every cup of corn, will result in a corn soufflé which must be sent direct from the oven to the table. This baked corn dish is on the list of "to order" specialties and is well worth waiting for the required 10 minutes.

In the case of the popular baked corn preparations much depends upon the attractiveness of the service. Sent to table in individual ramekins or in a quaint brown casserole with stubby handle, the most ordinary combination of ingredients, well cooked and seasoned, gains a place among the most frequently ordered dishes. Corn timbales are in reality individual corn puddings baked in timbale molds set in a pan of hot water. The slow cooking, under a shelter of buttered paper, gives them a remarkable delicacy. Served with tomato purée or with a cream sauce made green with much chopped parsley, corn timbales stand high on the list of green corn dishes.

Creamed corn makes a delicious filling for either baked tomatoes or green peppers. In each case the green corn is taken direct from the cob and cooked slightly with a little onion before being used as a filling. Some-what similar in flavor to a corn omelet served with tomato sauce or with the highly flavored sauce which accompanies what is known as Spanish omelet. Any of these are excellent as luncheon dishes for this time of the year, when green corn is at its best.

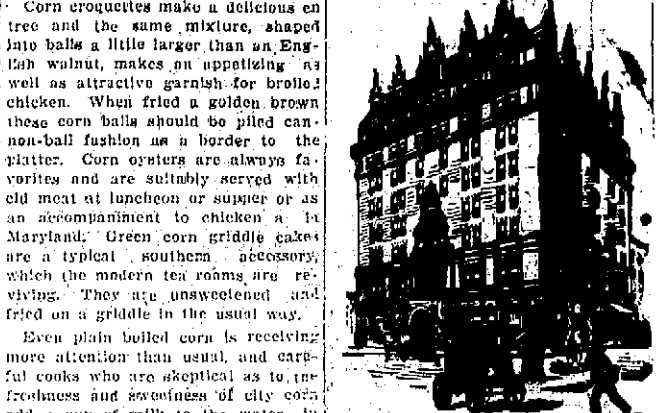

Corn croquettes make a delicious entree and the same mixture, shaped into balls a little larger than an English walnut, makes an appetizing as well as attractive garnish for broiled chicken. When fried a golden brown these corn balls should be piled cannon-ball fashion on a border to the platter. Corn oysters are always favorites and are suitably served with old meat at luncheon or supper or as an accompaniment to chicken à la Maryland. Green corn griddle cakes are a typical southern accessory, which the modern tea rooms are reviving. They are unsweetened and fried on a griddle in the usual way.

Even plain boiled corn is receiving more attention than usual, and careful cooks who are skeptical as to the freshness and sweetness of city corn add a cup of milk to the water in which the corn is boiling, and also a spoonful or two of sugar. These additions are often responsible for the good results in boiling corn that is lacking in its own milky sweetness. Pieces of the stalk allowed to boil in the water also make for sweetness and many cooks leave a few of the outer leaves of the husk on after the silk has been carefully pulled out, a long outer leaf being used to tie the inner leaves in place during boiling. These little tricks tend to conserve all the natural flavor. There is also a right and a wrong way to cut raw corn from the cob. Each grain should be scored through the center with a sharp knife, and the milky pulp scraped from the hull, with some dull kitchen utensil. Grated corn is even more delicate and when intended for corn timbales or croquettes is much to be preferred.

SHIPS OF FLEET IMPROVE GUN-NERY. Scores made by the battleships and destroyers of the Atlantic fleet in the elementary target practice just completed were much higher than those of last year in spite of the fact that the present rules of practice are more rigid than ever before. Officers and men of the fleet are awaking with keen interest the final computation of the scores as the successful gun pointers and winning turret crews receive substantial prizes and wear distinguishing marks on their uniforms.

"There's a Reason"

LET THE HERALD SOLVE YOUR "AD" PROBLEM

How many times do your salesmen fail to do business because the way wasn't prepared for them with properly placed advertising?

It's the newspaper that must win a hearing today for your product. Advertising is necessary in making sales because purchasers have to be first interested in your goods—have to be first convinced that you really have something worth while to offer them—before they buy.

No selling plan can be effective, and no sales force can bring home the bacon without direct advertising. It's the very life-blood of business.

If you wish us to criticize your advertising we shall be pleased to give you our opinion without charge. We write the right ads to make advertising good advertising.

POLICE NEWS.

Edward Andrews, alias Michael Meehan, and Harry Gordon, two booze fighters, were before His Honor in the district court today. Gordon escaped with a suspended fine of $5.00 and costs of $5.76. The police got them pass-handling and working the cripple stunt. Meehan when arrested gave his name as Andrews, but the police knew his right title and he nearly flopped when they told him that he must go back to the farm and complete the rest of a former sentence. Meehan jumped the reservation several months ago. After the first term is finished he must go on his second enlistment and the May flowers will be in bloom when he breathes the air of freedom in 1914. His ticket calls for a six months' stay on the second hitch with the figures $7.50 attached.

Fighting Over Cellar Room.

George Carr and a colored boy named Thompson are both residents of the same dwelling on New Castle avenue. For several days there has been a war of words as to how much floor space the families were entitled to in the cellar. The colored boy did a bit of carpenter work and added up a lot of boards as a partition. George declared his took a big half and the war was on. She made splinters out of Thompson's new work with a big axe, and told him to fade away in his own corner of the dugout. She claimed that he pushed her and the axe which she had in her hand accidentally struck him. Thompson charged her with assault but could show no mark of the batle. The court gave some advice for the pair of them to consider and released the defendant with a suspended fine of $5.00.

A dozen boys from the west end fled up in phatons at the headquarters today when they were escorted by Officer Stramon. Complaints have been coming to the chief for some time as to the variety of mischief indulged in by the urinals. Chief Hurley told them that it was their best chance and the next complaint would land them in court. They promised to be real nice boys in the future and were released.

Wife Complains.

On complaint of his wife a young man in a bad state from drink was locked up for safe keeping.

SPECIAL—Monday and Tuesday, Sept. 23, 30—"When Women Go On the Warpath"—Vita-graph—2 Parts With Mr. Sidney Drew.

"THE FIVE FRANKFORTHES."

The noted comedy drama "The Five Frankforthes" (the story of the rise of the House of Rothschild) which comes in the Majestic Sept. 23, after notable runs in London, Berlin, Vienna and New York, is one of the really exquisitely clean and beautiful plays of the age. And in this day of the current and decadent drama the critics have welcomed its refreshing charm.

The superb original New York cast is headed by that grande dame of the American and German stage, Miss Mathilde Cottrell, who has for over thirty years proven her versatility in scores of productions—musical, dramatic, and farcical, but it remained for her to win her real laurels in the quaint and absorbing comedy "The Five Frankforthes."

At the opening of the play (the period being 1822) the founder of the historic house is dead, but his wife and charming old widow, Frau Coudula, and his sons (the money kings of Europe and the friends of royalty) survive.

Solomon of Vienna has called to a family conference at the mother's home in Frankfurt, Carl of Italy, Nathan of England, Jacob of Paris and Anthon of Frankfurt. He brings with him his beautiful daughter, Charlotte, whom he proposes to marry to the Duke of Taurus and thus still further elevate his family (who have all recently been created barons) but the wise and lovely old mother and grandmother sternly oppose any such bargaining in love and in the end wins happiness for the youthful sweethearts.

The original New York cast includes Miss Mathilde Cottrell, Edward Emery, Lynn Pratt, Frank Loebe, C. Norman Hammond, Edward Mackay, Pedro de Cordoba, Alma Bielwin, Helena Byrne, Marie Davis, Henry Travers, Lawrence Grant, Henry Tearing, Arthur Row, Frank Davis, Georgia Waldron and Nilita Bristow.

THE COUNTRY AUCTION

Lib, there's our wooden cradle.
A 'going ter' be sold;
It must be every single bit
Of fifty-five years old.
There goes Aunt Hannah's chest of drawers;
Say! How much did it bring?
Three dollars? Well its worth it, though
A clumsy built old thing!

There's grandpas four post bedstead,
Two, three, four dollars, five
What fools them city folks must be!
Why, goodness-sakes alive,
I wouldn't give it house room;
With its great awkward head;
And when it comes to move to sweep,
Then posts they weigh like lead.

A quarter for them fire irons?
Who wants such things today?
When folks can buy such lovely stoves?

They, city folks you say,
Are buyin' the old poker
And lungs and shovels, too?
I wonder when they get them home,
What they expect to do?

There's father's old high desk, and mother's Unshaned rocking chair—
One-fifty, two, three dollars?—
Well, I call that very fair!

For the solid cash it brings—
Let's go to town tomorrow—
And buy some nice new things.
—Cornelia Redmond, Jr., Poet.
